

ACROLLAM BLANC

Year 2023

Varieties: Premsal and Giró

Winemaking zone: Vi de la Terra de Mallorca

Viticulture: Biodynamic

Climatology: The year 2023 has been a year of contrasts. In February we said goodbye with a significant snowfall of more than 4 cm thick in Porreres and Felanitx, which is unusual. A spring of moderate rainfall followed and we closed the season with an unprecedented and localized episode of rain that accumulated 204 liters accompanied by hail. In two days the equivalent of 40% of the annual rainfall was accumulated. Felanitx vineyards did not receive as much water.

The statistics speak of an even warmer year than in 2022, but the perception is that in 2023 the heat arrived later than the previous year. The truth is that the summer months were extremely hot. July was a month of many tropical nights and two heat waves were recorded. In August in Porreres we had 8 days with temperatures over 36 degrees, when the normal is 2 and September was a hot month. The end of summer and autumn have not been generous in terms of rainfall or low temperatures and the green plant covers planted during October and November have hardly grown at all.

Vinification: Equilibrium of three techniques for the Premsal: pre-fermentation maceration and carbonic maceration and fermentation with the skins, while for the Giró we opt for direct pressing. Once the different varieties have been fermented separately, we make the definitive coupage, using no sulphurous substances throughout production.

Type of ageing: With the fine lees until just before bottling, adding no sulphites.

Alcoholic degree: 13%

ATT: 4,7

Residual sugars: 0,3

Clarification: No

Bottling: April 2024

Market launch: May 2024

Tasting note: Fresh white fruit, fine and delicate, to make it lively in the mouth, with notes of brine and lime.

Comments: "Acrollam" is "Mallorca" in reverse, because we like to do our work in our own way, often "the other way round" from what is customary, escaping from the established canons.

The ACROLLAM BLANC label shows a woman who is searching for her identity, femininity ready to plunge into the sea, ready to live new adventures and to lead changes without relinquishing her personal way of being: without fear of the waves or the storm. A passion for life, for feeling caressed by the salt texture of our sea.

ACROLLAM BLANC and ROSAT share the same image: a mandala formed by concentric figures that suggest the search for perfection in making the different wines, while the perimeter of the circle evokes the return to the cycles of nature, like the vine itself.
